miles this side of the power house. The road will be completed into Flat River before Christmas.—Flat River News.

The Globe-Democrat refers to the editor of the REGISTER as a sad-eyed Missourian. The G.-D. wouldn't know a sad-eyed man if it met him. But we do know of a young man in this town who is sure sad-eyed just at the present writing. And he's had enough hard knocks the past week to make him sad-eyed, too. For sad eyes the REGISTER man isn't in it with this fellow.

M. E. Rhodes, the Republican nominee for Congress in this district, is reported in last Saturday's Globe-Democrat as saying that the Democrats in Iron county "are rebelling against their ticket from President down." Mr. Rhodes never spent as much as three days in Iron county in his life, and knows as much about conditions here as a porker knows of affairs in the Philippines. If he got any such information on his recent visit here, as above quoted, he got it from sore-heads and bolters—not many of them at that. Iron county, as usual, will do the right thing in November.

A telegram was received here Friday morning announcing the death of Martin L. Claybaugh, at the home of his brother in Hope, Pa. The deceased had not been in good health for many years and the announcement of his death was not unexpected. Mr. Claybaugh was for many, many years a resident of Ironton, and was well and favorably known. About three months ago he went to Pennsylvania to visit his brother. Shortly after his arrival there he suffered a severe attack of rheumatism, from which he never rallied. The remains were brought here for interment and the funeral occurred from the Baptist church Sunday afternoon. Peace to his ashes! James Claybaugh, brother of the deceased, and Vance Claybaugh, a nephew, accompanied the remains here.

Last Sunday afternoon, at the residence of her grandparents, the very young Miss since known as Dorothy Camille Reese was christened according to the rite of the Lutheran church, Rev. Schluselman officiating. Miss Dorothy, as well as her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Reese, had been for some time visiting the "old folks"—Mr. and Mrs. Aug. Riecke—and advantage was taken to have the ceremony performed at the place which had also witnessed the christening of the mother, who, with her husband, is now residing at New Orleans. Miss Dorothy's first public appearance was witnessed by a goodly number of friends of the family, and an elegant supper—of which she did not partake, by the way—supplemented the official proceedings. Long life to her, and may she ever prove a blessing to those who now hold her as the apple of their eyes!

If I were asked to name the crime of crimes, the blackest sin of them all, I should not consider one moment as to my answer. Something may be said in mitigation of the pirate, the highwayman and the murderer—at least they have a theory for their action—but what can you say of the man who has prospered, aided by others, and then forgets the shoulders on which he climbed? Down in the corner of the homicide's heart there exists here and there a tiny drop of the red blood of life that might flower into compassion, but no tempered steel, driven by giant hammers, could dent the heart of him who takes and gives not. God made him, as He did all else, for a wise purpose; He made the rattlesnake, the python and the vampire. Then in His wisdom He saw the world needed something of even greater malignity. So He created the ingrate.—Bloomfield Courier.

The United States department of agriculture estimates that the Woolly Aphis or the "wooly louse of the apple" will cost the apple growers of the United States ten million dollars this year and at least three hundred thousand dollars of this loss will fall upon the apple growers of Missouri. It is high time then that Missouri orchard growers were awakening to the known preventatives of its ravages. The University of Missouri has clearly demonstrated that injury by it to the limbs of trees may be prevented by spraying them with a strong solution of kerosene emulsion and to the roots of the trees by a liberal use of tobacco dust, both when the tree is planted and every spring before settled weather comes. For the root application the earth should be removed from around the trunk for a distance of two feet and to a depth of four inches and the space thus made filled with tobacco dust covered with earth.

Mrs. Thomas Davenport, the wife of the popular railroad conductor, Thomas Davenport, died yesterday about noon of tuberculosis, from which she has been a sufferer for some time. Only a short time ago she went on a trip to the south and west, hoping that the change of climate would benefit her, but it was of no avail and for some time her friends have realized that her death was only a question of a short while. Mrs. Davenport was well and favorably known here and was admired by all for her many womanly traits of character. Early in life she professed faith in her Saviour and united with the Baptist church and has been a consistent Christian since. Her Christianity was exemplified in her every day life and she died happy in her belief. She leaves a husband, several stepchildren and a host of friends who have the sympathy of all. Her remains will be taken to De Soto to-morrow for interment.—Poplar Bluff Republican.

Under the heading "A Sad-Eyed Missourian" the following appeared in the editorial columns of last Friday's Globe-Democrat: "The editor of the IRON COUNTY (Mo.) REGISTER (Dem.) is haunted by the idea that the Democrats of his county are going fishing on election day. He proclaims himself to be a stronger Bryan-man than before his idol was 'tried in the school of temporary defeat,' but announces that he will vote for Parker for the following reason: 'Parker is, it is true, a believer in the gold standard, and was in 1896 and 1900. But that did not prevent his submission to the will of the party then, and he gave his influence and of his money—he is not a rich man—to the conduct of the Democratic campaign. It does not draw from my stock of magnanimity to support such a man.' The reason given for supporting Parker is defective in an important respect. While Parker may, in a spirit of submissiveness to his party, have voted the Democratic ticket in 1896 and 1900, he was careful to add an important appendix of his own to the Democratic national platform of 1904. The platform had been unanimously adopted and Parker nominated, when he telegraphed that he would not run without letting the convention know that he held the gold standard to be firmly and irrevocably established. As the convention, after a long and heated controversy in committee, had unanimously decided to omit a financial plank, the telegram of Parker was decidedly the reverse of submissive. There are Democrats who say the telegram was courageous, in spite of the fact that it was practically impossible to change the nomination at that stage, but, in any case it was remarkably dictatorial. The Iron county editor, while waiting for Bryan's temporary defeat to roll by, should not bank on Parker's submissiveness to the decisions of his party. By the way, is magnanimity better than reason in choosing a President? We trust the fishing will be good in Iron county on November 8th."

HON. E. T. EVERSOLE.

Not in years have we had so much rain in August as fell here last week. People who had been predicting a drouth, surely will have no cause to feel any uneasiness in regard to the dreaded drouth presentment for at least a few weeks.

An abundant crop of corn in this locality is fully assured. This, with the fact that there is a large crop of better mast, is very encouraging to farmers, particularly those who live near the range.

The roads are in a very remarkably bad condition for this time of the year. This road question will, in the near future, take a definite scope, and will in all probability become a prominent factor in politics. The poor man, that has to pay taxes on every cent he is worth and is compelled to wade mud six months in the year, is surely beginning to think somewhat along that line. A few years will work wonders along that line. Watch and see.
